*This guidance relates to standard examinations only.
Following the emergency changes made to the format of assessments in Easter term 2020, any changes regarding the 2020/21 academic year will be communicated.*

1. Rationale

This Guidance relates to candidates for all examinations except those assessed by thesis and oral. These notes should be read in conjunction with the General Board's Code of Practice: reasonable adjustments for disabled students.

This Guidance is intended to complement the relevant University Ordinances. They should not be taken to imply that, given a particular set of circumstances, the Committee will automatically reach a particular decision. The relevant Ordinances can be found online in Chapter III (Examinations, 2019 Ordinances p247) www.admin.cam.ac.uk/univ/so/

Examination Access and Mitigation Committee

2. Background

2.1. The Cambridge Tripos is examined predominantly by formal 3-hour examinations. Saturdays and Bank Holidays are considered to be normal examination days. A student may have up to two examinations per day(s). This is standard and is not in itself grounds for examination arrangements.

2.2. Most of the examination sites are large and students can expect an “examination atmosphere”; most students feel nervous about examinations and this in itself is not grounds for arrangements.

2.3. University examination regulations apply to all students including those who have examination arrangements.

Further guidance on the legal requirements under the Equality Act 2010 is available in the General Board's' Code of Practice: reasonable adjustments for disabled students

3. Remit: which students does the Examination Access and Mitigation Committee consider?

3.1. The Examination Access and Mitigation Committee ('EAMC') considers requests for students on courses with a taught element: Tripos and certain Postgraduate courses.

3.2 The Committee is authorised to adjust the arrangements or conditions under which an examination is sat such as the length, timing and place of examination, and the use of a computer, as set out in detail in section 6 below.

3.3 Where these adjustments do not adequately enable a disabled student to avoid the specific, substantial disadvantage which they would experience as a result of their disability, the Committee may also consider requests for an alternative mode of assessment. This will, in most cases, entail the Committee setting aside the regulations for the examination where to do so is an effective and reasonable means of avoiding the disadvantage in question, and where there is no equally effective, reasonable, alternative means of avoiding that disadvantage.

4. Principles: what is the Examination Access and Mitigation Committee charged to do?

4.1. The Committee has the following overarching aims:

- To endeavour to ensure parity of treatment between applicants to the Committee who share similar circumstances, whilst recognising that each case is individual.
- To be mindful of the interests of students taking the same examination but who are not applicants to the Committee.
- To ensure that, particularly in relation to disregarding terms and repeating a period of study, an applicant is neither advantaged nor disadvantaged in comparison with other students.

4.2. Requests for consideration of an alternative mode of assessment will be for exceptional cases of disability and will be considered on a case-by-case basis. In determining whether an alternative form of assessment is appropriate, both the particular needs of a student and the particular competence standards being assessed in the examination will be taken into account. Further information is available at section 7 and in the General Board's Code of Practice: reasonable adjustments for disabled students.

4.3. The Committee considers requests for examination arrangements from colleges on behalf of their students. No student may apply directly to the Committee. Where another body (such as faculty, department, or student union) presents a case for a student, the Committee will direct the student to their college.

4.4 The Committee considers each request on an individual basis.

5. Adjustments to examination arrangements: the role of the college

5.1. Colleges should ask all students as a matter of course whether they believe they require adjustments to be made for them for examination purposes. A disabled student's college will receive a copy of any Student Support Document (SSD), issued to disabled students who disclose a disability to the Disability Resource Centre (DRC) and require adjustments. The college should discuss any adjustments the student considers they need and any SSD with the student as soon as the student takes up their place at Cambridge, and in every Michaelmas Term thereafter. The discussions should determine what examination arrangements (if any) are to be sought in the forthcoming academic year.

Using CamSIS, a college must request examination arrangements by the deadline, which is the division of Lent term. For 2020/21 this is 13 February 2021. The deadline is required to allow the student time to practise with the approved adjustment before the examination(s). Consequently, it may not be possible to accommodate all aspects of a college's request if the request is received after the deadline. Where supporting documentation is required, but not available at this date, this must be submitted no later than, the final Friday of Lent Full term. For 2020/21, this is 19 March 2021.

5.2. After the examination(s), the college should meet with the student to review the examination arrangements and discuss whether to apply for the same in the coming academic year or to seek alternative arrangements or an alternative mode of assessment.

5.3. Where a student believes they require examination arrangements, but does not hold an SSD, the college might refer them to the DRC or alternatively, should contact exam.arrangements@admin.cam.ac.uk (if the student is unable (or unwilling) to be referred to the DRC, to determine what documentation is required to support the request. The same deadlines apply.

5.4. Requests do not carry over from year to year. Colleges must review the adjustments received by each student and agree whether to seek the same or a different adjustment (if any). Colleges must make a separate request for each student each year.

The Committee understands that some circumstances, which might require adjustments to an examination, may not become known until later in the Lent Term and that the college may therefore only be able to notify the EAMC at that point. Therefore, as soon as the need is identified, the college should seek the advice of the Committee by emailing exam.arrangements@admin.cam.ac.uk. The Committee will consider the case but it may not be possible to accommodate the request, especially where it requires an adjustment that the student must practise.

5.5. The Committee considers the request and the evidence in the light of its principles (ref para 4.3 above). Where necessary, the request will be discussed further with the college. The Committee confirms the outcome to the college via CamSIS.

6. Procedure: how a decision is reached about adjustments to examination arrangements

6.1. The adjustments are determined on a case-by-case basis, based on the evidence provided, and for all students are judged against normal practice in the UK.

6.2. To reach a decision, discussion may take place between the college, the DRC and the EAMC and these parties may advise each other in order to ascertain what arrangements will meet the principles of the Committee. If necessary, the Secretary of the Committee may arrange for the matter to be reviewed by a medically qualified member of staff and / or a Senior Tutor.

6.3. If a student has any questions about examination arrangements, they should ask the college to contact the EAMC via exam.arrangements@admin.cam.ac.uk.

6.4. Advice to staff and students is available from a number of sources, including the DRC and the Student Advice Service.

6.5. Please note that advice does not constitute authority and that authority to agree examination arrangements rests with the EAMC. No other body, including colleges, the DRC or Faculties and Departments, may authorise examination arrangements. Confirmation will only be given by the Committee to the college.

7. Provision: what sort of things are agreed as adjustments to examination arrangements for traditional written exams taken in-person.

7.1. The following is not exhaustive, nor should it be taken to imply that, given a particular set of circumstances, the Committee would automatically reach a particular decision. Each case is considered individually.

In the exam site

7.2. Physical adjustments to conditions may be made, for example use of a specific chair, table and / or lighting; bringing in medicine or food / drink for medical reasons.

7.3. If this is likely to disturb others, the college is required to take responsibility for accommodating its student(s).

Specific Learning Difficulties (SPLDs)

7.4. Students who are diagnosed with SpLDs are normally awarded a maximum of 25% extra time. They may also be permitted to use a pc if their diagnosis explicitly states that this should be provided. Students diagnosed with SpLD normally sit their examinations in the designated University examination sites. However, as described below, each of these arrangements may be varied in particular

7.5. Alternative format of how examination question paper is presented

The examination question paper may be presented differently, for example in braille or on coloured paper or a student may be allowed to use low vision aids. Where required, a reader may be used in written examinations; sign language may be used in aural examinations. Apart from the differences in presentation, the examination questions would remain as set and the rubric unchanged. The form of the examination is prescribed in Ordinance.

Additional time

7.6. Normally an overall maximum of up to 25 % additional time is agreed. The Committee may prescribe how the time is used, for example supervised rest breaks away from the examination, where writing is not permitted, or it might allow the student to use the time as they wish for example to work or rest or move around. A central examination site is provided specifically for students with additional time; in this site, there may be a variety of end times in any one session and students will be leaving at different times; some students may be allowed to move around during the exam. Additional time is provided at the end of the examination, not the beginning, so a student who is allowed 25 % additional time for a 3hr exam will finish 45 minutes later than the rest of the cohort. This might mean having only a short break if the student has two examinations on one day.

7.7. Allowances in excess of 25% are unusual in the UK. If the student submits evidence, obtained either from the UK or overseas, that indicates a recommendation for an allowance in excess of 25%, the Committee will consult the DRC to determine the need of that individual, taking into account normal practice in the UK. If a student is not satisfied with the decision, the Committee will refer the case for independent adjudication by a relevant expert external to the University.

Use of pc

7.8. Where the use of a pc is permitted by the Committee, the University or college provides the pc; a student may only use their own equipment if this arrangement is explicitly approved by the EAMC. A central examination site is provided specifically for students who are permitted to use a pc. Each student is encouraged to attend a training and registration session at the central site, on a date fixed each year by the site organiser. If a student does not attend this session, they may be at a disadvantage. Students in this site may also be permitted additional examination time - please refer above (para 7.4).

Sitting examinations in college

7.9. This is for exceptional and complex medical cases only. The request to the Committee is made at the discretion of the college, following discussion with the student. Where a college and the Committee agree that a student may sit examinations in college, the college then assumes responsibility for the practical implications and the examination environment. Official examination start times apply. An examination in college is subject to University examination regulations, including inspection by the Proctors. A Guide to In College Exams is available from the Student Registry

Using an amanuensis

7.10. The EAMC may in certain circumstances permit a student to dictate answers to an amanuensis. Please see the Guidance Notes for Using an Amanuensis.

Rescheduling an examination

7.11. In exceptional circumstances, the EAMC may permit a student to sit an examination at a time other than the officially timetabled one. This may require the student to be isolated overnight(s). It is the responsibility of the college to make all practical arrangements and to ensure that nothing improper occurs in terms of preparation for the examination. The student is required to sign a Declaration Form confirming that no improper means were used and acknowledging that sitting an examination earlier than the officially timetabled slot may mean that corrections to the question paper are not known when that student sits the examination. Please see the Guidance notes for permitting early or late sitting.

Extensions to deadlines

7.12. Where the submission date for a dissertation or other written work is prescribed by Ordinance, a college may apply to the Secretary to the EAMC at eamc@admin.cam.ac.uk for an extension to the deadline, by submitting the Application Form. Please read the accompanying Guidance Notes for Dissertation and Coursework Extensions.

Costs

7.13. The Equality Act 2010 includes a statement to the effect that a person who is required to make a reasonable adjustment on behalf of an applicant is not entitled to require that applicant to pay any of the costs of that provision. There is no cost to the student (for example a disabled student cannot be charged for the cost of additional invigilation).

8. Alternative Mode of Assessment: how does a college make a request?

8.1. Where a disabled student believes that the standard modes of assessment adjusted in accordance with the arrangements described above would not alleviate the substantial disadvantage they experience because of their disability, and would not allow them to demonstrate achievement of the competence standard required to be met, the EAMC will consider any specific request submitted by their college on behalf of the student to be assessed by an alternative means. This might, for example, be to substitute submitted work in place of written papers, for alternative shorter unseen papers to be set, to allow the student to take examination papers over a longer time period, or to take the examination over more than one year.

Before submitting an application for consideration of an alternative mode of assessment, students are normally expected to have discussed their requirements with a College Tutor. Applications must be submitted before the end of Michaelmas Term to the Secretary of the EAMC, by emailing exam.arrangements@admin.cam.ac.uk.

Requests must be made by the end of Michaelmas full term, to ensure that appropriate teaching can be put in place and that alternative modes can be discussed with the Faculty / Department concerned and suitable arrangements put in place. Applications received after the deadline will not be accepted unless there is a valid reason for delay.
